

SUMMARY

Perviy V. Yu. Identifying and documenting offenses in professional activity and professional services related to public services provision. On the basis of the analysis of scientific sources, features of detection and documentation of the specified category of crimes are considered. Taking into account the experience of implementation of the new criminal procedural legislation and practice of the work of the units of the National Police, the peculiarities of conducting separate investigative (search) actions during the investigation of crimes in the sphere of service activities and professional activities related to the provision of public services, which consists in urgent application of the complex of procedural means of gathering evidence, as well as the use of special knowledge.

The peculiarities of conducting separate investigative (search) actions during the investigation of crimes in the field of service activity are conditioned by the features of the specified category of crimes, situational factors, tactical tasks of the investigation and the content of the algorithms chosen for their solutions. Such investigations, such activities, searches, questioning of witnesses and suspects, as well as secret investigative (search) actions are characteristic for the investigation of the said crimes.

The author of the article notes that the feature of this category of crimes directly affects the process of their investigation. In particular, the characteristic feature of crime in the field of official activity, as a kind of social behavior, is its adaptability to social-economic and political conditions that exist in certain segments of society. The specified type of offenses in most cases is carried out by officials who are characterized by a high educational level and a significant number of corrupt connections. In addition, in order to achieve the criminal plan, they use appropriate criminal technologies. All this often causes certain difficulties for law enforcement officers in detecting and documenting offenses in the field of service activities and professional activities related to the provision of public services. Therefore, an important task for law enforcement bodies is to ensure timely detection, investigation and prevention of offenses of the specified category.

On the basis of the content of the article, the conclusions were drawn up aimed at improving the work of investigating units in detecting and documenting crimes in the field of service and professional activities related to the provision of public services.

Keywords: service activities, professional activities, public services, detection of crime, documenting a crime.